

Everything is ready for the 79th edition of the Tour de Pologne UCI WorldTour

Here are the official jerseys for which the participants will battle it out and the most coveted trophy, that of the winner.

In the run-up to the official presentation of the 79th edition of the Tour de Pologne, scheduled for Friday 29th July from 6pm, the spotlight will not only be on the protagonists but also on the jerseys they will be competing for stage after stage.

One of them is the yellow general classification jersey, sponsored by Energia, the number one partner of the Polish race for the next three years.

For the riders who will compete in the fast finishes, the Best Sprinter jersey from Lotos is up for grabs, while the climbers will aim for the PZU Best Climber classification. Lotto will be offering one of the most significant prizes, the one dedicated to the most combative runner, and finally, teams will be able to aspire to win a final classification sponsored by Lang Team.

The winner of the race will have the pleasure of raising the, now iconic, trophy to the sky, which was designed and created by the Italian artist Mirko Demattè. The trophy which, as in past editions, is made of autochthonous Trentino materials and is of great symbolic value that unites sports with craftsmanship and strengthens relationships between the people. A message that has never been so relevant, as well as maintaining the values of our collective both in terms of peace and solidarity that the Tour de Pologne wishes to convey to the world.

Confident that the roster of riders, who have chosen to compete the Polish stage race this year, will yet again provide moments of great cycling and we hope you enjoy the show.
