The start of the 80th Tour de Pologne UCI WorldTour is only one month away!

Riders from 24 teams will start their battle for the coveted ORLEN-sponsored yellow jersey on 29th July.

There are only 30 days to go until the start of the anniversary edition of the famous Polish stage race. The first names of the riders who are going to start in Poznań are already known. This includes three winners of the Tour de Pologne in recent years: Rafal Majka, Tim Wellens and João Almeida, all representing the UAE Emirates Team. These great champions will be joined by 2022 ITT ME World Champion Tobias Foss and his Jumbo-Visma teammate Olav Kooij. The Dutchman won the 2022 stage in Lublin.

All the teams are preparing really strong line-ups for this year's Tour de Pologne. It promises to be a battle down to the last metre, and if the participation of the three winners of the previous years is confirmed, it will add a great deal of value.

The seven-day race will once again feature a challenging course for the top riders as they tackle 1130 kilometres of breathtaking Polish roads. The varied and challenging route guarantees a real spectacle, that week, for fans from all over the world.

New updates on the competitors, route and sponsors will follow as we await the start date for another exciting edition of the race in exactly one month's time.
