

Nimbl continues to consolidate its position on the global cycling stage with a particularly promising start to the season.

In Australia, athletes wearing Ultimate Air and Ultimate Exceed Pro Edition demonstrated their ability to perform with remarkable results in both road and time trials. Luke Durbridge took a thrilling victory in the elite road race at Kings Park thanks to a real team effort where teammate Luke Plapp helped him hold off his rivals in the final kilometres. Plapp, meanwhile, dominated the time trial, claiming his third Australian title with an outstanding performance. Reflecting on his success, he confirmed that he had worked hard for a long time to achieve a result he could be satisfied with. The women's competition also brought exciting success for the brand, thanks to Noemi Rüegg, who won a stage and the overall title at the Tour Down Under Women. The reward for hard work, as the athlete said. The Down Under campaign concluded on a high note with Mauro Schmid's first WorldTour success. The Swiss rider won the Cadel Evans Road Race 2025 after a solo effort, making his team proud with their first win in the Australian race.

Beyond Australia, Nimbl-supported athletes continued to win prestigious victories around the world. Olav Kooij has proved his strength by winning the Tour of Oman, cementing his reputation as one of the most promising sprinters in the world. Linda Zanetti triumphed at the Vuelta CV Femeninas, marking a significant achievement in her early season campaign. Michal Kwiatkowski added another prestigious title to his collection by winning the Clásica Jaén, demonstrating his versatility on challenging terrain. Meanwhile, Christian Scaroni celebrated two brilliant victories to underline his strong form this season. Finally, Jonas Vingegaard put in an outstanding performance at the Volta ao Algarve, proving that he is ready for the big races ahead.

With these outstanding results, Nimbl kicks off its 2025 season on a high note. As the brand continues to support world-class athletes, these victories underline the perfect blend of cutting-edge technology and the highest quality performance that defines Nimbl cycling shoes..
