

Ready for take-off: Barista Attitude brings Pilot to NRA Chicago.

The brand's first single boiler, designed for those just starting out — but ready to take off in style.

The brand's first single boiler, designed for those just starting out — but ready to take off in style. Barista Attitude heads to Chicago with Pilot, the espresso machine created to support baristas taking their first steps into the world of professional coffee.

With its evocative name, Pilot positions itself as a true guide for those embarking on their first journey into espresso extraction. Inspired by the image of a captain skilfully navigating even the roughest waters, Pilot is Barista Attitude's first single boiler — marking a turning point for anyone seeking an intuitive, accessible, and high-quality tool.

Visitors can experience it in action at stand 7666 – North Building, where the Barista Attitude team will be on hand to demonstrate the machine's features up close.

Perfect for dynamic environments such as large chains or high-volume operations, Pilot combines ergonomics, compactness, and smart functionality. Simplified menu access, precise pre-infusion control, and programmable settings for each group ensure every extraction is reliable and easily repeatable — even for novice baristas.

Key features include the anti-burn steam wand, positioned at the front to improve workflow and provide maximum freedom of movement. The Super Dry system and optional Autosteamer complete a technical package designed to support training and maintain top-quality results, especially for milk-based beverages.

The design reflects Barista Attitude's signature style: refined aesthetics, easy-access components, and an exclusive petrol colour that makes Pilot a true standout in the range.

Pilot is more than just a machine — it's a travel companion for those who want to take coffee seriously. Chicago will be another important stop on this journey to excellence.
