

Performance and precision in the pursuit of Pink

Chosen by pro riders, Floating Armadillo supports performance through the toughest three weeks of racing.

With the 'Corsa Rosa' just around the corner, every detail counts. Three weeks of racing, thousands of kilometres, brutal climbs and unpredictable conditions are the ultimate test. In this context, the right chamois isn't just a technical feature: it's an essential ally. Teosport responds with its top-of-the-range solution: Floating Armadillo.

Designed to support professional cyclists throughout the first Grand Tour of the season, Floating Armadillo offers the perfect balance of lightness, ergonomics and breathability. At its heart is a dual 'floating' chamois system that moves in sync with the rider, ensuring optimum ventilation and quick drying - even on the most demanding days.

The inner insert is based on Teosport's innovative Armadillo concept, with sculpted channels of varying heights that adapt to the constant changes in posture: compression, torsion, extension and inclination. This intelligent structure keeps the chamois in the ideal position at all times, increasing support and stability during long hours in the saddle.

The skin contact surface is flat yet anatomical, thanks to T-Mirror technology that reduces friction and naturally conforms to the body. Meanwhile, the 90-degree side panels (HT90) ensure a perfect fit even during the most intense moments of performance. The whole system is completed by the Blade Sign 3D Cutting System, which removes excess foam to reduce weight and provide targeted support where it matters most.

The Floating Armadillo isn't just a chamois - it's a luxury domestique. Engineered for performance, refined for comfort, it's the choice of riders who want to win the Trofeo Senza Fine one day at a time.
