

TeoSport to take centre stage at Performance Days 2025

RE-UP joins the Textile to Textile trend in Munich.

From 29 to 30 October, TeoSport will once again participate in Performance Days, the international trade fair dedicated to functional fabrics and technical solutions for sportswear.

This is a key event for the industry where innovation and sustainability come together to create the technologies of tomorrow.

This edition's central theme, 'Textile to Textile – The Role of Recyclers', emphasises the significance of a circular and regenerative approach within the textile supply chain — one that minimises reliance on virgin resources while maintaining fibre quality.

In this context, TeoSport is strengthening its commitment to sustainability by reintroducing RE-UP: an innovative pad combining high technical performance with recycled materials that was designed and developed entirely within the company's R&D department.

RE-UP has been selected for inclusion in the 'Additional & Garment' section of the Performance Days Trend Forum, an area showcasing accessories and technical solutions that are redefining the evolution of functional materials. This selection is an important recognition of TeoSport's research and development work, as well as its ability to anticipate industry trends by blending comfort, breathability and sustainability in a single product.

The pads on display will be featured within the Trend Forum, each accompanied by a QR code linking to their detailed technical sheets on the official Performance Days website.

Through RE-UP and its ongoing collaborations, TeoSport is reaffirming its commitment to responsible innovation, focusing on high performance, comfort and genuine sustainability. This commitment not only translates into cutting-edge products, but also into a circular vision of sports manufacturing where every material has a second life and every detail matters.

Brands and professionals are invited at booth B04 at Messe Munich to discover the full range of TeoSport pads and immerse themselves in the world of the Treviso-based Italian company, which has always supported those who demand top-level professional performance.
